

Abstract

A communication server for interfacing an antimicrobial treatment device with an instrument management system. The server allows an instrument tracking system to receive and request data from a wide variety of antimicrobial treatment devices.